Selection to the 2018 Top 20 Online Learning Library Companies List was based on the following criteria:
- Industry visibility, innovation and impact
- Breadth and quality of courses and content
- Company size and growth potential
- Quality of clients
- Geographic reach

"The companies included in the Top 20 Online Learning Library Companies List have demonstrated their value to professionals and their employers. Learners now expect access to the best content, from anywhere in the world, on their schedule, and these companies are exceeding expectations," said Ken Taylor, president of Training Industry, Inc. "This is our second annual Top 20 list for this sector, and we anticipate continued growth as more organizations turn to these providers for their learning content needs."

"This is the first year we have added an Online Learning Library Watch List, as we have many emerging companies offering new resources for online learning," said Danielle Draewell, market research analyst at Training Industry, Inc. "These providers offer innovative ways to access exceptional digital content and allow their customers to choose from a diverse selection of courses that align with their training requirements."
